The Widow Valencia believed in you, and that made her special. You'd spent your life trying to convince others that you could do great things, but she gave you the chance to actually do them. You aren't the only person "Grandma Valencia" helped. You've learned more, sorcerous and mundane, from her and your "adopted family" than you ever have before. It's only been four months, and you're already considering looking for teaching positions. But now that the funeral is done, you've decided to celebrate "grandma" at the harvest festival with the "family" that believes in you.
